TAXATION

Capitalised terms used in this section headed "Taxation" shall bear the same meanings as used in the Information Memorandum, except to the extent that they are separately defined in this JSE Placement Document or this is clearly inappropriate from the context.

The Issuer makes no representation and gives no warranty, or undertaking, express or implied, and accepts no responsibility for the accuracy or completeness of the information contained in this section.

South Africa Taxation

The information below is intended to be a general guide to the relevant laws of South Africa and is not intended as comprehensive advice and does not purport to describe all of the considerations that may be relevant to a prospective purchaser of, or subscriber for, South African Securities. Prospective purchasers of, or subscribers for, South African Securities should consult their own professional advisers with regard to the purchase of or subscription for, South African Securities and the tax implications thereof. The information contained below sets out guidelines on the current position regarding South African taxation for taxpayers who hold South African Securities as capital assets. Prospective purchasers of, or subscribers for, South African Securities should consult their own advisers.

Withholding Tax

South Africa levies a withholding tax on interest paid to or for the benefit of a tax non-resident to the extent that the interest is sourced in South Africa in terms of section 50B(1) of the Income Tax Act, 1962 ("Income Tax Act"). Subject to certain exemptions, the withholding tax will be levied at a rate of 15%. The rate of this withholding tax may be reduced to the extent that any relevant double taxation treaty applies. There is also an exemption for interest paid in respect of any debt instrument listed on a recognised exchange. Should the South African Notes be listed on the JSE (which constitutes a recognised exchange), the exemption should be available, subject to any amendments to the legislation, and interest paid by the relevant Issuer will not be subject to withholding tax.

Section 9(2)(b) of the Income Tax Act, 1962 deems interest to be from a source in South Africa to the extent that the interest is (i) incurred by a resident, unless the interest is attributable to a permanent establishment which is situated outside the Republic, or (ii) received or accrued in respect of any funds used or applied in the Republic.

To the extent that interest is earned from a source outside of South Africa, under current taxation law in South Africa, all payments made under the South African Notes to non-resident Noteholders will be made free of withholding or deduction for or on account of any taxes, duties, assessments or governmental charges in South Africa.

Under current taxation law in South Africa, all payments made under the South African Notes to resident Noteholders will be made free of withholding or deduction for or on account of any taxes, duties, assessments or governmental charges in South Africa.

Non-residents: Income Tax

South Africa imposes income tax on non-residents in respect of South African sourced income, unless an exemption is available. To the extent that interest is deemed to be sourced in South Africa non-residents should be exempt from income tax on the interest earned from a South African source in terms of section 10(1)(h), unless they (i) are natural persons who are physically present in South Africa for a period exceeding 183 days in the aggregate during the relevant year of assessment, or (ii) carried on business through a permanent establishment in South Africa at any time during the relevant year of assessment.

If the South African Notes are held on capital account, the sale of the South African Notes by a non-resident will only be subject to capital gains tax in South Africa if the South African Notes are attributable to a permanent establishment of that person in South Africa or constitute any interest in or right of whatever nature to or in immovable property situated in South Africa. This treatment is subject to the provisions of any applicable tax treaty.

To the extent that interest is sourced from a source other than South Africa, non-resident holders of South African Notes should not fall within the ambit of current South African tax legislation.

Residents: Income Tax:

Interest received by or accruing to South African tax residents holding the South African Notes will be subject to income tax in such holders' hands (subject to certain qualifying persons being exempt from income tax and further subject to certain nominal exemptions for natural persons). The interest accrual must be determined in accordance with the relevant provisions of the Income Tax Act. The Income Tax Act requires that any accrued interest (whether received or not) as well as any premium or discount on the issue and/or redemption of the South African Notes as interest. The tax accrual of such interest must be spread over the term of the South African Notes using the yield to maturity or an acceptable alternative methodology as set out in the Income Tax Act.

To the extent that the interest received or accrued to residents is from a source outside of South Africa, residents may be entitled to relief in terms of an applicable tax treaty or in terms of section 6quat in respect of any foreign taxes incurred on the interest.
